THE KINGDOM OF SAUDI ARABIA OUTLOOK 2019

The Kingdom of Saudi Arabia (the “KSA”) is a keystone nation part of the Cooperation Council of the Arab States of the Gulf (the “GCC”). The GCC is the wealthiest and, in terms of resources, strategically most important bloc in the wider Middle East. Its member states (Bahrain, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, and the United Arab Emirates) have some of the highest GDP per capita rates in the world. Though collectively holding less than 1% of the world’s population, their large oil reserves have allowed them to wield enormous influence on the world stage.

The outlook for these nations has been favourable for so long that the recent crash in oil prices caught almost everyone by surprise, sending shockwaves through the region. In little over a year oil prices has fallen from USD 100 a barrel to around USD 30. This has brought the region’s diversification strategies into sharp focus and transformed the way international investors think about engaging with the MENA, the GCC and the KSA in particular.

Oil revenues account for around 45% of the KSA’s GDP, 90% of export earnings and 80% of the government’s budget. Therefore the Authorities in the KSA undertook a heavy diversification of its revenues by enacting new taxation laws, which in mid run shall have positive impacts on the GDP.

The KSA economy is projected to expand again in 2019 with a 2% increase in GDP mainly due to a moderate recovery in oil production levels and marginally higher public spending.

This economic environment has some positive impacts for foreign direct investments. Indeed in order to attract foreign investments the KSA is undertaking a major shaping in its national laws in order to secure the foreign investors. This is leading in major reforms for various public authorities, rules, regulations and laws to facilitate the registration of new entities which shall create a new business dynamic.

The Kingdom of Saudi Arabia is currently going through major social and economic reforms as part of Saudi Vision 2030 and the associated National Transformation Programme. The Saudi Arabian government is introducing a number of laws and policy changes aimed at simplifying business and increasing foreign investment in the Kingdom.

Investors need a clear and defined legal framework which gives some securities to their investments. This is exactly what is happening in the KSA. The promulgations of Decrees, Rules, Regulations and improvement of Laws to abide with international standards is a pre-requisite for investments.

Badr Alarishi law firm is keeping itself and its Clients updated with the new laws from SAGIA, PIF, CMA etc.. The barriers to entering the KSA market, for a Saudi national investor, are very low. The most common options available for individuals thinking about starting new businesses in technology and innovation are sole proprietorships and Limited Liability Companies ('LLCs').

For a Saudi national (who is not a public servant) to incorporate a sole proprietorship or an LLC, all that is required is his or her Saudi national identification card, and completion of an online registration process via the Ministry of Commerce and Investment ('MOCI') website. The entire process can be completed in a single working day and will allow the local investor to begin undertaking business under the umbrella of the new business vehicle.

At this stage, because of current foreign investment regulations in Saudi Arabia, opportunities for startups as entrepreneurs are really only available to Saudi nationals and Saudi companies. This is generally because a foreign investor must provide financial statements and a proven track-record of business before being allowed to invest in the KSA market.

The government has only recently provided startup opportunities for entrepreneurs with intellectual property or an invention to invest as individuals since the beginning of 2018. Whether the economic liberalization arising out of Kingdom Vision 2030 will eventually extend to allowing non-Saudis to establish start-ups in Saudi Arabia is difficult to say.

Foreign investment in Saudi Arabia

Where a prospective investor in Saudi Arabia is a foreign investor for the purposes of the Kingdom's foreign investment laws, it is necessary to obtain a Foreign Investment Licence from the Saudi Arabian General Investment Authority ('SAGIA') in order to establish a corporate entity. Other specific approvals may be required from other authorities, depending on the business that the entity wishes to undertake.

Obtaining a Foreign Investment Licence has become much easier than in previous years. With the leadership of the Council for Economic and Developmental Affairs ('CEDA'), and internal reforms within SAGIA, the processing time has decreased to a number of days. This is a stark contrast to the six to nine months that it would have typically taken in the relatively recent past.

Significantly, the business activities that an overseas investor wishes to undertake must not be activities classified as exclusive to Saudi Arabian (or GCC) companies and nationals. This restriction could arise due to the activities being on the so-called “Negative List” (being business activities that SAGIA has specified as being exclusive to Saudis) or being otherwise identified as being restricted to Saudis in internal SAGIA policies and guidelines.

Types of entities

Companies with overseas ownership that desire to undertake services are usually incorporated as a “Branch Office” or as an LLC, and can typically be completely foreign-owned. Entities incorporated to undertake services are not permitted to conduct any advertising or trading activities.

Companies with overseas ownership that wish to undertake marketing, promotions and sales activities are generally regarded by SAGIA as ‘trading’ entities.

A trading entity would typically be an LLC (or, less typically, due to rigorous governance requirements) a Joint Stock Company, but it could not be a Branch.

It is possible to incorporate a wholly foreign-owned trading entity, although the significant investment requirements (between two and three hundred million Saudi Riyals over a five year period) mean that this is not very common in practice.

Besides a Branch Office and an LLC there are some other options available

- Temporary Commercial Registration: This type of corporate entity is similar to a Branch, but is only relevant to servicing a government contract. As such, this type of entity is not uncommon in the context of technology projects with government ministries. In order to obtain a temporary commercial registration, it is necessary to submit a signed copy of the relevant contract to SAGIA.

Secondary registrations

Once a Foreign Investment Licence has been granted by SAGIA and a Certificate of Commercial Registration has been issued from MOCI, a number of additional registrations must be completed with various governmental authorities to enable the new entity to function. These types of registrations allow an entity to pay taxes and insurance, obtain visas for expatriate workers, and register signatures at the Chamber of Commerce, etc. Each of these secondary registrations must be renewed and kept valid in order for the entity to continue to do business in Saudi Arabia. Substantial delays and inconvenience could arise if any of these licences are not maintained.

For overseas investors, the investment climate in Saudi Arabia has never been better. The social and economic reforms that underpin Saudi Vision 2030 are having a positive impact on the regulation of the business undertaking in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, and will assist in propelling the Kingdom into the post-oil era. As the building blocks of Saudi Vision 2030 fall into place, setting-up business in Saudi Arabia is becoming more efficient than ever before.

LEGAL MARKET IN THE KINGDOM OF SAUDI ARABIA

The legal market in the KSA has always been highly attractive for the top 50 law firms. Whilst the reputable international law firms entered the legal market through local joint ventures, partnership with Saudi Law firms, lawyers, and the accredited lawyers in the KSA reached 5'364, in other word it accounts to 1 lawyer for every 6'000 resident in the KSA. This means that the legal market is highly dynamic and that the competition for lawyers is very high.

In an open market when there is a competition this means that the services to be provided have to be up to the international standards and to the satisfaction of the Client.

Badr Alarishi law firm is highly aware of this competition in the legal field and with consciousness it is extending its legal services toward the whole Kingdom.

Such diversity of legal backgrounds is an added value for the Firm when it comes to advice on cross borders transactions, Foreign Direct Investments or oversea personal legal matters.

Nonetheless, on top of practicing the legal profession with ethics, having lawyers with various legal backgrounds is what makes the Firm unique in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia with its ability of mastering the applicable Sharia Law, Royal Decrees, Laws, various Governmental Rules and Regulations enacted in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

The Firm lawyers are very proactive with civil criminal commercial administrative and ad'hoc tribunal procedures (1), very knowledgeable on the applicable Saudi laws (2) and can advise for the registration of legal entities and/or business transactions in the Kingdom.

1/ A good law firm is a firm that knows the legal process of a case

For Mr. Badr Alarishi a successful lawyer is the one who masters the legal process. Either for litigation, the registration of a legal entity, or for negotiation of contracts, a legal process must be followed. Mastering the legal process will always keep the Client satisfied and a step ahead. Because time is money and the Client entrusted the Firm, there is no time to be wasted in the process. At Badr Alarishi Law firm, the Lawyers are proactive in all Courts of First Instance (civil, criminal, commercial), Courts of Appeal and Supreme Courts, as well as with Administrative Courts, Arbitral Tribunals and various Administrative offices. Finally, Mr Badr Alarishi masters the Law of Judiciary (Royal Decree # M/78 dated 1st October 2007).

2/ A good law firm is a firm that masters the applicable law

Badr Alarishi law firm is the best law firm in Jeddah because despite its ability to master the legal process by representing both Plaintiffs and Defendants in trials and appeals through the Kingdom, the legal corpus of the Kingdom has no secret for its lawyers.

The Firm can advise individuals/corporations on the applicable Saudi law in court or in a transaction.

The Saudi system of government is based on and regulated by the principles of Sharia law, which refers to the body of moral, religious, social and legal precepts found in the Holy Quran, the teachings of the prophet Mohammad (PBUH) (the Sunnah) and the various interpretations given to these teachings by Islamic scholars over centuries.

The primacy of Sharia was formally reflected in the Kingdom's Basic Law of Government which was enacted by Royal Decree # A/90 dated 1st March 1992. Indeed, Article 7 of the Basic Law of Government provides that "the powers to rule the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia emanate from the Book of God and the Sunna of his Messenger, both of which prevail over this and all other laws of the state". Likewise, Article 23 of the Basic law of Government stipulates that "the state shall protect the Islamic faith and shall cater to the application of Sharia".

An essential point shall be flagged, knowing, the judgments rendered by Saudi courts do not establish binding precedents and the principle of stare decisions is not recognized in the Kingdom. Consequently, there is no guarantee that a matter that has been adjudicated in a certain matter by a given court will be adjudicated in the same way by the same or another court as judges will decide the case based on their own interpretation of Sharia. Article 48 of the Basic Law of Government obliges the courts to "... apply the rules of Sharia in the cases that are brought before them, in accordance with the precepts contained in the Quran and the Sunnah, and regulations decreed by the ruler which do not contradict the Quran and the Sunnah...". Since Sharia does not cater to all aspects of human activities and in order to keep up with modern life developments and requirements, the Saudi government has enacted various regulations (often based on best international practice) dealing with such matters as mutual insurance, banking, foreign investment, capital markets, companies' formation and governance, commercial agencies and franchising, leasing etc..

The Saudi legal corpus is quickly increasing and evolving to adapt with the Kingdom Vision 2030. Therefore new rules/regulations are enacted, and regulation bodies are created such as; the Saudi Arabian Monetary Authority (aka SAMA) (created back in 1952), the Saudi Arabia General Investment Authority (aka SAGIA) (created by the Council of Ministers Resolution # 2 dated 9th April 2000), the Capital Market Authority (aka CMA) (created by the Royal Decree # M/30 dated 1st August 2003), the Public Investment Fund (aka PIF) (created by the Royal Decree # M/24 1971).

All those regulatory bodies, have their specific rules and regulations. Therefore what makes the Firm a stand apart law firm is that despite its capability of mastering the particular rules, and laws of the government bodies, it also masters the applicable Saudi Commercial Law (XXXXX), Corporate Law (XXXXX), Agency Law (XXXXX) Distribution Law (XXXXX), Labour Law (XXXXX) and Taxation Law (XXXXX).

Badr Alarishi law firm is the go to firm because of its way of practicing law as an Art with ethics and principles, the strong legal backgrounds of its Partners and affiliated lawyers and its deep knowledge of the Saudi legal process and applicable laws.

Furthermore, it is essential to mention that the Firm is a multidisciplinary law firm that can successfully handle an inheritance case, a labour issue and still handle the negotiation of a multibillion riyal cross border commercial transaction.
